The image displays two anatomical illustrations of the human muscular system. The left illustration shows the front view (anterior), and the right illustration shows the back view (posterior). Both views are surrounded by empty rectangular boxes connected by lines to specific muscle groups, intended for a labeling exercise. The muscles are rendered in a realistic red color with white connective tissue. The front view shows the face, neck, chest, abdomen, and legs. The back view shows the neck, shoulders, back, and buttocks/legs.
